

1. Decline in full the masculine, feminine, and neuter of the following pronouns:

αὐτός -ή -ό

ἐκεῖνος -η -ο

ὅδε, ἤδε, τόδε

2. Note the translation for the following sentence:

οἱ δαίμονες εἴτε τὸ φῶς εἴτε τὴν ἐλπίδα δεικνύουσιν.

The gods are showing either light or hope.

Rewrite the Greek so that it translates as follows (words in parentheses need not be translated into Greek):

a. They themselves are showing either that or this.

b. Those (gods) are showing either this or that.

3. Note the translation for the following sentence:

ὁ ἄρχων οὖν τὸ ὕδωρ ἢ τὰ χρήματα τῷ ἡγεμόνι παραδίδωσι.

The ruler, therefore, is handing back the water or money to the commander.

Rewrite the Greek so that it translates as follows (words in parentheses need not be translated into Greek):

a. The same ruler, therefore, is handing back that (water) or that (money) to this commander.

b. This ruler, therefore, is handing back this water or that money to him.